

Product Safety Recall

KitchenAid Electric Kettle 1.7L

Sold nationally from 1 November 2013 to 21 February 2018 through Myer, David Jones, Harvey Norman, Good Guys, Bing Lee, Winnings, Online selected specialist homeware retailers and independent homeware stores.

Identifying Features: 1.7L stainless steel kettle with variable temperature control. Affected models include 5KEK1722AAC, 5KEK1722AER, 5KEK1722AOB, 5KEK1722ACU and 5KEK1722ASX and have serial numbers from YA342XXXXX to YA724XXXXX.

Defect: The handle on the kettle may become loose or separate from the body of the kettle.

Hazard: If the handle detaches during use, a consumer could be scalded or burned. The defect has occurred and caused injuries to consumers.

What to do: Check the model and serial number on bottom of your kettle as shown in the picture below. If you have the affected kettle, or are in doubt, immediately stop using the kettle and call 1800 990 990 or visit <https://kitchenaid.com/pages/product-safety-recall-kettle-form> to arrange for a replacement of affected kettles.

Model and Serial Number Location

Located on the bottom of the Kettle

See productsafety.gov.au for Australian product recall information