18 December 2016 and 15 July 2017

Defect The timber legs supporting the dining table may split where they join the support bar that runs horizontally under the table top, possibly causing the table to collapse.

Hazard If the table collapses there is a risk of injury.

What to do Consumers should not apply any heavy force on the table top. Consumers should contact Nick Scali to arrange for installation of a supporting brace on the timber legs of the dining table, at no charge.
