

Product Safety Recall

Brand Republic

baby GAP children's nightwear

Between at least July 2011 and May 2013 Brand Republic Pty Ltd sold from its GAP stores in Victoria and New South Wales a variety of baby GAP branded children's pyjamas and one-piece garments. The "low fire danger" label attached to some of the garments was not in the position required by the mandatory product safety standard for children's nightwear.

The labels on those garments were attached on a side seam of the one-piece garments and the pyjama tops and not inside their back neck, as required by the Standard.

This may result in the fire warning labels not being seen by a child's carer.

Photos of some of the garments which are the subject of this recall appear above.

Consumers who purchased any of the baby GAP garments photographed above, or who purchased any other baby GAP garment which was labelled in the manner outlined above, should return it to their nearest GAP store for a full refund.
